RAIL MERGER PLANS SAVING IN OPERATION

I. C. C. RAIL HEARING ON AT MINNEAPOLIS

UNIFICATION OF GREAT NORTHERN AND NORTHERN PACIFIC PROPOSED

CONSOLIDATING TERMINALS AT SPOKANE WOULD SAVE $305,546 ANNUALLY

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 27.—(UP)—Testimony purporting to show savings in operations and terminal facilities occupied today's session of the interstate commerce commission hearing on the proposed unification of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads.

H. C. Ames, Seattle, assistant general superintendent of the Northern Pacific, testified that at the Spokane terminal, the unification would permit a saving of $305,546 annually.

H. E. Jones, assistant superintendent of the Great Northern, testified that the savings in the Twin Cities through the merger annually would amount to $678,458.

F. H. Wood, counsel for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, chief opponents to the proposed unification of the Northerns, through his cross examination of witnesses, inferred there was a doubt as to the authenticity of the figures.

WORLD TO FACE

FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

A-PLenty IN 1929

Washington, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Because of unusual political situations abroad the world in 1929 will face an accumulation of financial problems unprecedented in peace time, high government officials said today.

The world now is passing through a "political twilight" until after important elections in France and Great Britain when the financial issues must be faced, it was explained. These postponed problems include inter-allied war debts and German reparations.

In 1929 the French $400,000,000 debt to the United States for surplus war materials becomes due, creating a difficult situation unless the Mellon-Berenger debt funding agreement is ratified by France. Unless France confirms a settlement of her entire war obligation the United States can demand full payment.

Germany must begin making maximum reparations payments of $600,000,000 annually in 1929, an increase of nearly $150,000,000 yearly over the amount now paid. Officials said the success or failure of the Dawes plan depends on Germany's ability to meet these payments.

Germany is rehabilitating itself domestically, but its export situation is unfavorable, according to reports.

Some officials in Great Britain, France and the United States would like to face these problems now, but with the possibility of entirely new governments in the nations within the next two years, it is difficult to put into effect any plans that would outlive the elections, it was stated.

DYNAMITE AND STENCH BOMBINGS PROBED IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 27.—(UP)—A series of dynamite and stench bombings here recently was under investigation by authorities today following an unsuccessful third attempt to destroy a new $40,000 residence.

James Stinson, a private watchman at the newly completed home of Albert L. Weas, a contractor, reported to police that he prevented destruction of the home last night by cutting the burning fuse from a charge of dynamite hurled from a passing automobile.

"HARD WORK IS THE BEST FARM RELIEF"

A. P. GIANNINI, FOUNDER OF THE BANK OF ITALY, IN SAN FRANCISCO, GIVES VIEWS

HIS BANK IS THIRD LARGEST IN NATION AND THE LARGEST BRANCH BANK

A. P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of Italy of San Francisco has the reputation of having made more persons rich than any other man in America. His bank is the third largest in the nation and the largest branch bank. He has written his views on farm relief, golf and automobiles for the United Press while attending the bankers' convention.

By A. P. GIANNINI
Houston, Texas, Oct. 27.—Hard work is the best farm relief. And, as I see it, it is the only relief rural America can expect.

Congress may pass laws to hand the farmers money but it will be distress, not relief.

All over the country the farm situation is getting better by the natural process of adjustment for the farmers who work. For those who are willing to "let George do it" the situation will never improve.

The reason there is general improvement is because farmers, hard pressed by the policy they pursued, found it necessary to go to work when they went to work. They were applying the very best antidote for failure.

I wouldn't want it understood that the government should do nothing to help—it can very well assist by distributing information and fostering better marketing and being helpful to the farmers without giving them anything.

To give to them would discourage hard work as they would take the attitude that if they got in bad again the government would come to their rescue.

There is no better example of this than the doles in England, where 500,000 men are out of work not because there is no work but because they don't want to work.

There are too many automobiles to take the farmers away from their work. A little prosperity distracts them. They spend their money in good times and have nothing on which to operate when times are not so good. Both conservation and diversification will help them.

Another thing—I think there is too damn much golf in the country. I have never understood how a man can spend half his time on a golf course and be more interested in it than in his business and succeed in business. This afflicts the business men more than it does the farmer but the farmer has plenty to distract him from his business.

He gets it in his head he wants to be boss and hire his work done. He doesn't seem to know that, if his farm is to be a success, he must be on the job himself and buckle down.

CHICAGO RENEWS CHASE AFTER KING GEORGE

BRAND NEW STAR STEPS INTO SPOTLIGHT OF CHICAGO'S DRAMA

NEWEST PERFORMER IS FREDERICK F. SCHRADER, MAGAZINE EDITOR

Chicago, Oct. 27.—(UP)—A brand new star today stepped into the spotlight of Chicago's drama, "school-books and kings," and literally stole the show from Mayor William Hale Thompson, heretofore the leading character.

The newest performer, Frederick F. Schrader, 71 year old German American magazine editor, believes, like Thompson, that "King George should be chased out of American schools and libraries."

He believes it so firmly that he has astounded even Thompson's most ardent followers with his blunt condemnation of "British tactics in obtaining a foothold in this country."

Undaunted by a barrage of attacks turned on him by opponents of Thompson, he tore loose with statements far stronger than any yet made by the most vigorous backers of the "America first" movement.

He accused Britain of conspiring to have this country become a part of the "British empire."

He charged that England would like to see our histories re-written so that John Paul Jones would become a pirate; Patrick Henry, a tavern brawler; John Hancock, a smuggler; and George Washington, a whiskey distiller.

He made the flat statement "that Britain is against America."

He took an entirely new position toward the English people than that taken by other sponsors of Thompson's movement.

Where Thompson said he had nothing but love for the English people, but objected to British tactics in "distorting our histories," Schrader professed love for "nothing that is British."

"I am trying to do what I can to keep America from becoming a part of the British empire," he said. "There is no doubt the English are trying to accomplish this."

"They are doing it by instructing children in the schools of America on their pet theories. They want the voters of the future to absorb the British viewpoint and be in attitude of mind to betray their country when the time comes."

Schrader was brought into the campaign by Thompson, to aid in the prosecution of Supt. of Schools William McAndrew, who is on trial on charges of "favoring England in schoolwork."

McAndrew's trial again was recessed yesterday and will re-open Nov. 2.

Meanwhile, Thompson's critics were busy preparing a defense against Schrader's charges.

They countered with the information that Schrader's writings were barred from the mails during the war because they were "pro-German."

It was also charged that Schrader in one passage referred to Woodrow Wilson as "the tool of banking interests which forced us into war with Germany."

Attorney Laird Bell, one of Thompson's opponents expressed the opinion of his faction when he said: "Thompson might as well have William Hohenzollern of Doorn as an aid. He would be just as appropriate."

It was also pointed out that Thompson's move in obtaining Schrader as an ally might have had its origin in the fact that there are 600,000 persons of German descent in the city. Some persons were unkind enough to suggest that there are "a lot of votes in that many persons."

Meanwhile Thompson himself was quiet, except for a reiteration that he had not advocated burning "undesirable books in the libraries." Schrader is the editor of "The Progressive," a paper which he said

I. W. W. IN A BATTLE WITH MINE GUARDS

CHEERING AND SHOUTING. MEN AND WOMEN ADVANCE BEHIND FLAG

DOZEN KNOCKOUTS AND KNOCK-DOWNS BEFORE PICKETS REACH OBJECTIVE

Trinidad, Colo., Oct. 27.—(UP)—Cheering and shouting as they advanced behind an American flag, men and women members of the I. W. W. today battled mine guards in the rough, hilly country of Delagua Canon.

More than a dozen knockouts and knockdowns occurred before the pickets succeeded in reaching their objective and closing the Delagua mine one of the largest Victor-American properties.

The pickets were led by Mitka Sablich, pretty 19-year-old miner's daughter, who later described the battle by saying, "We fought like hell to get there and we did."

She was handcuffed and later released. Three of the miners were arrested for violating the anti-picketing law.

The trouble started after an American Legion member had grabbed the colors from the hands of an I. W. W. picket.

"We have a right to fly our flag in battle," one leader cried out. The pickets refused to leave the property until their flag had been returned.

This was done on orders of mine officials to avoid further conflict.

With the colors again in their possession the men and women marched down the hillside singing their battle cry "Union Forever."

BAR SENATE OIL COMMITTEE TESTIMONY GIVEN

HARRY SINCLAIR'S UTTERANCES NOT USED AGAINST HIM IN OIL CASE

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS MAINTAIN SINCLAIR WAS GIVEN SUCH IMMUNITY

By HERBERT LITTLE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 27.—Harry Sinclair's senate oil committee testimony that "I went to Three Rivers to see Fall (then secretary of the Interior) about leasing Teapot Dome," Jan. 1, 1922, was barred as testimony against him in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial here today.

Justice Siddons made the decision which is expected to govern a dozen other quotations from statements made by the oil magnate and former Secretary Albert B. Fall to the senate committee, which the government prosecutors have planned to introduce.

Defense lawyers asserted Sinclair was given immunity from having his senate testimony used against him by a special statute applying to witnesses who later were tried on criminal charges.

Prosecutor Owen Roberts held the law was not a "blanket immunity" and that Sinclair, in order to be protected, must have asserted his claim to immunity at the time he testified.

The decision came after a week and a half of trial of Fall and Sinclair on charges of conspiring to defraud the government through Fall's lease of the Teapot naval reserve to Sinclair April 7, 1922.

While the justice read his decision M. T. Everhart, Fall's ranch foreman and son-in-law, appeared in court ready to be summoned by the government as a witness. The government hoped—if he did not claim immunity—to gather from him important details of the $230,500 in liberty bonds which it claims were indirectly given Fall from an oil deal to influence him in leasing Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

Justice Siddons said Sinclair in his appearance before the senate Teapot Dome was entitled to statutory immunities of congressional witnesses in his 45 minute decision.

The justice recalled that oil committee evidence of E. L. Doheny, admitted against that oil magnate in the Fall-Doheny trial a year ago, was given voluntarily, and not under order of the committee. This placed his testimony on a different footing from Sinclair's.

May Attempt Another Trans-Atlantic Flight

Old Orchard, Maine, Oct. 27.—(UP)—With the resumption of daily weather bulletins ordered last night, indications were that Mrs. Frances Grayson intended another trans-Atlantic flight attempt despite warnings that the season was too late.

Mechanics expected to complete installation of a new Wright Whirlwind motor in the Sikorsky plane today, and by tomorrow the sequel-plane probably will be ready for another attempt if sea and ground tests prove successful.

"After the plane is fully repaired and if the weather reports are good I shall consider everything and see if it is expedient to go," Mrs. Grayson said.

BORAH-NORRIS GROUP HAS BEEN FORMED

ENCOURAGES ANNOUNCEMENT OF SENATOR CURTIS' CANDIDACY

OPEN CAMPAIGN STARTED IN THE SENATE ON FARM ISSUE

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 27.—"Put the west on the political map"—is the slogan behind unusual events on Capitol Hill here.

According to those who are taking a leading part in the movement, the slogan inspired the formation of the Borah-Norris group, encouraged the announcement by Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, that he will be a republican presidential candidate and stirred the independent alliance of the senate to an open campaign on the farm issue.

The movement to make the voice of the west heard in political matters will continue through the impending session of congress.

Overnight developments in the drive included:

1. Indication from the independentists that they would make no effort to oppose the Curtis candidacy.

2. Announcement by Sen. Borah, republican, Idaho, that he will not let any differences with Sen. Norris, republican, Nebraska, interfere with his support of Norris for the 1928 nomination.

3. Issuance of the first of a series of campaign statements from Sen. Brookhart, republican, Iowa, pointing out the difficulties of the farmers. It represents the views of the independent senatorial alliance of mid-westerners. The next statements will be on railroads and credits.

While these three developments are not directly connected, they are all a part of the same movement. The idea is to make republican leaders "hear" from the west, to make the west an important factor in the coming congress and in the presidential campaign. The senators concerned in the matter say privately they are not so much interested in who shall be the nominee as in the necessity that he be a western man. For that reason they are willing to encourage the Curtis movement in Kansas and elsewhere, even though most of the group publicly favors Norris.

"I do not favor the equalization fee," Borah told Gov. McMullen of Nebraska, in a public telegram, "but the equalization fee is but an item in farm relief and does not in the slightest interfere with my support of Norris. As I understand your telegram, you are for Norris so long as he has a chance but that you have already decided he has no chance. If the delegation from Nebraska were of the same view, it would be no use to send a delegation for Norris. I cannot interpret your telegram in any other way than that you prefer Lowden."

"All parties have pledged agriculture equality with other business," said Brookhart in his 1,000-word farm statement, "but in spite of this pledge the farmers might just as well know they will get no adequate relief during the present administration, and it is a waste of time to fight for anything but a genuine solution of the farm problem."

POSTPONE FARM RELIEF CONFERENCE, McNARY NOT PRESENT

St. Paul, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Urgent business requiring the presence of Sen. Charles L. McNary in Chicago and Washington caused postponement today of a farm relief conference.

While passing through the city, Senator McNary let it be known, however, that he will oppose any compromise suggestion for incorporation in the McNary-Haugen bill when it is re-drafted for introduction at the coming session of congress.

He expects to return to St. Paul in 10 days when he will confer with farm bloc leaders.

BAR SENATE OIL COMMITTEE TESTIMONY GIVEN

HARRY SINCLAIR'S UTTERANCES NOT USED AGAINST HIM IN OIL CASE

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS MAINTAIN SINCLAIR WAS GIVEN SUCH IMMUNITY

By HERBERT LITTLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 27.—Harry Sinclair's senate oil committee testimony that "I went to Three Rivers to see Fall (then secretary of the interior) about leasing Teapot Dome," Jan. 1, 1922, was barred as testimony against him in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial here today.

Justice Siddons made the decision which is expected to govern a dozen other quotations from statements made by the oil magnate and former Secretary Albert B. Fall to the senate committee, which the government prosecutors have planned to introduce.

Defense lawyers asserted Sinclair was given immunity from having his senate testimony used against him by a special statute applying to witnesses who later were tried on criminal charges.

Prosecutor Owen Roberts held the law was not a "blanket immunity" and that Sinclair, in order to be protected, must have asserted his claim to immunity at the time he testified.

The decision came after a week and a half of trial of Fall and Sinclair on charges of conspiring to defraud the government through Fall's lease of the Teapot naval reserve to Sinclair April 7, 1922.

While the justice read his decision M. T. Everhart, Fall's ranch foreman and son-in-law, appeared in court ready to be summoned by the government as a witness. The government hoped—if he did not claim immunity—to gather from him important details of the $230,500 in liberty bonds which it claims were indirectly given Fall from an oil deal to influence him in leasing Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

Justice Siddons said Sinclair in his appearance before the senate Teapot Dome was entitled to statutory immunities of congressional witnesses in his 45 minute decision.

The justice recalled that oil committee evidence of E. L. Doheny, admitted against that oil magnate in the Fall-Doheny trial a year ago, was given voluntarily, and not under order of the committee. This placed his testimony on a different footing from Sinclair's.

Mrs. Frances Grayson May Attempt Another Trans-Atlantic Flight

Old Orchard, Maine, Oct. 27.—(UP)—With the resumption of daily weather bulleting ordered last night, indications were that Mrs. Frances Grayson intended another trans-Atlantic flight attempt despite warnings that the season was too late.

Mechanics expected to complete installation of a new Wright Whirlwind motor in the Sikorsky plane today, and by tomorrow the seaplane probably will be ready for another attempt if sea and ground tests prove successful.

"After the plane is fully repaired and if the weather reports are good I shall consider everything and see if it is expedient to go," Mrs. Grayson said.

BORAH-NORRIS GROUP HAS BEEN FORMED

ENCOURAGES ANNOUNCEMENT OF SENATOR CURTIS' CANDIDACY

OPEN CAMPAIGN STARTED IN THE SENATE ON FARM ISSUE

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 27.—"Put the west on the political map"—is the slogan behind unusual events on Capitol Hill here.

According to those who are taking a leading part in the movement, the slogan inspired the formation of the Borah-Norris group, encouraged the announcement by Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, that he will be a republican presidential candidate and stirred the independent alliance of the senate to an open campaign on the farm issue.

The movement to make the voice of the west heard in political matters will continue through the impending session of congress.

Overnight developments in the drive included:

1. Indication from the independents that they would make no effort to oppose the Curtis candidacy.

2. Announcement by Sen. Borah, republican, Idaho, that he will not let any differences with Sen. Norris, republican, Nebraska, interfere with his support of Norris for the 1928 nomination.

3. Issuance of the first of a series of campaign statements from Sen. Brookhart, republican, Iowa, pointing out the difficulties of the farmers. It represents the views of the independent senatorial alliance of mid-westerners. The next statements will be on railroads and credits.

While these three developments are not directly connected, they are all a part of the same movement. The idea is to make republican leaders "hear" from the west, to make the west an important factor in the coming congress and in the presidential campaign. The senators concerned in the matter say privately they are not so much interested in who shall be the nominee as in the necessity that he be a western man. For that reason they are willing to encourage the Curtis movement in Kansas and elsewhere, even though most of the group publicly favors Norris.

"I do not favor the equalization fee," Borah told Gov. McMullen of Nebraska, in a public telegram, "but the equalization fee is but an item in farm relief and does not in the slightest interfere with my support of Norris. As I understand your telegram, you are for Norris so long as he has a chance but that you have already decided he has no chance. If the delegation from Nebraska were of the same view, it would be no use to send a delegation for Norris. I cannot interpret your telegram in any other way than that you prefer Lowden."

"All parties have pledged agriculture equality with other business," said Brookhart in his 1,000-word farm statement, "but in spite of this pledge the farmers might just as well know they will get no adequate relief during the present administration, and it is a waste of time to fight for anything but a genuine solution of the farm problem."

POSTPONE FARM RELIEF CONFERENCE, McNARY NOT PRESENT

St. Paul, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Urgent business requiring the presence of Sen. Charles L. McNary in Chicago and Washington caused postponement today of a farm relief conference.

While passing through the city, Senator McNary let it be known, however, that he will oppose any compromise suggestion for incorporation in the McNary-Haugen bill when it is re-drafted for introduction at the coming session of congress.

He expects to return to St. Paul in 10 days when he will confer with farm bloc leaders.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

DISCREPANCIES SEEN IN TOWNSHIP RECORDS

W. F. Wolford Former Clerk of Wolford Faces Charge of Forgery
IN SECOND DEGREE
Public Examiner's Investigation Reveals That Warrants Were Raised

W. F. Wolford, charged with forgery in the second degree waived examination in municipal court this morning and was bound over to the district court to await action at the next general term which will convene on November 1.

Wolford had been a member of the town board of Wolford township and a member of the board of common school district No. 44, Crow Wing county for the past six years holding on the town board the office of clerk and on the school board the office of treasurer.

On April 4, 1927 the public examiner's office on petition of the freeholders of Wolford township examined the records of the township and school district. As a result of the examination Wolford was charged with the forgery of town warrants of that township. The particular forgery that Wolford is charged with is that on May 29, 1926 he issued an order as clerk of the township to himself in the sum of $4.49. This order was issued after the verified bill was filed by W. F. Wolford in the sum of $4.49. After receiving the warrant Wolford on the same day raised the amount from $4.49 to $14.49 and endorsed on the back that he had received from the treasurer, Mrs. R. Wolford, his mother, the sum of $14.49 it is charged.

The examination disclosed seven other instances where the warrants had been raised. On December 10, 1925 a warrant was raised from $8.80 to $18.80; September 17, 1926, a warrant was raised from $5.24 to $15.24; on October 23, 1926, a warrant raised from $2.92 to $12.92; on December 10, 1925, a warrant raised from $6.85 to $16.85, and others.

On the warrant that the forger's charge is based on the raising of the amount in the warrant is apparent because of the fact that the forger used a different color ink.

According to the examiner's report there is an unexplained difference in the treasurer's record of $512.98 but a detailed check of the bank's withdrawals could not be made owing to the lack of records and of cancelled checks.

The examiners state that the records of both the township and the school district were in a chaotic condition.

No bail was set in municipal court due to the fact that in a charge such as against Wolford, bail must be set by the judge of the district court on petition of the defendant.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

and then talks will be given by the Grand Chancellor, and other grand representatives. The convention will close with a midnight banquet.

Y. M. C. A. FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

THE Y. M. C. A. financial campaign is progressing favorably and it is believed that within a short time the goal will be attained. Business men of the city have been generous in their support and large corporations have also shown a most friendly interest.

In this campaign there has been thorough and quiet solicitation and the feeling is everywhere expressed that Brainerd's interest in the Y. M. C. A. is appreciated by the Northern Pacific railway company. Many more new subscribers have been added to the lists.

The committee soliciting funds is gratified at the reception accorded them in their work. This renewed interest in the association means bigger and better things.

The membership is growing, over 200 boys being active in the Y programs. Double that number is expected this winter. As cleanliness is next to godliness, it may be mentioned that the shower bath feature at the Y with its hot water facilities is being utilized to the fullest extent. Those not members can have this privilege by paying a small fee.

Saturday evenings are to have special programs and features, making them nights devoted especially to the shopmen of the city.

Four boy societies are now being sponsored by the Y and more are to be added. Many branches of athletics are to be represented. Business men of the city will also have the opportunity to take advantage of Y classes. A number of boy graduates of the high school will assist in a physical program to benefit their younger brothers.

New covering has been received for the game tables, so they will be in first class condition. Every effort is being made to make the building a community center for boys of the city, as well as their older brothers, the men of the shops, business men and others.

On all sides one sees renewed confidence and hope in the association. The committee of business men headed by F. H. Gruenhagen will not cease its labors upon completion of the financial campaign, but will continue to act as a financial steering committee throughout the year.

"NAVY DAY" ON ROOSEVELT'S BIRTHDAY

"NAVY DAY," October 27, is the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt. To his heart, no institution was as close as was the Navy. On the Navy he spent much time, thought and energy, and the Navy still feels his influence. More glorious pages to vivid chapters of naval history were added because of Theodore Roosevelt. It is fitting that his birthday be designated as "Navy Day."

For a hundred and fifty years the Navy has not only been the first line of defense, but has stood by to render necessary services to those in need, both in peace and in war.

Navy Day has some significance in Brainerd where some thirty or more families have boys in the navy. One has reached the status of commander of a ship.

The problem of a merchant marine is one requiring the keenest ability to handle. True, a merchant marine is indispensable when war comes and it has uses in peace time. The American Shipping Board is doing its best to operate vessels. It is confronted, however, with American shipping laws which make it more expensive to operate American ships than our foreign competitors in the same field.

Just as soon as you talk of extensive subsidizing of a merchant marine, you encounter the opposition of the farmers who figure if any subsidizing is to be done, congress might try it out on agriculture.

AN EDITOR ON A VACATION

J. E. REYNOLDS, formerly editor of the Mankato Free Press, some six weeks ago dropped the editorial pen and shears, closed his desk and went on a real vacation.

He has been visiting in northern Minnesota, renewing acquaintances in this section and is really amazed to see the progress visible, in fact sticking out all over in many communities. Some of the sections are so prosperous that they fairly exude prosperity from every pore.

The growth of decent roads under the Babcock system has been a marvel and Mr. Reynolds is convinced that the day of universal cement paving for heavy traffic roads is not only dawning, but faces the state. Something must be done as many gravelled roads cannot longer stand the impetus of thousands of cars pounding on their surface.

Being on his first vacation in years, and being away from home, the telephone bell no longer worries the editor. No irate subscribers can reach him because something or other was published or not published. However, he can't stay away from printer's ink, for in every town he has visited his first friend to be looked up is the local newspaperman and the rest of the fraternity.

We notice with some satisfaction that our old friend Tommy Wood carries some weight in the movies. Ever since Tom played opposite Charlie Chaplin he has risen steadily in the scale of movie popularity. All Brainerd anxiously awaits presentation of his latest picture.

COMMANDER OF MOSELLA BELIEVES ITALIAN SHIP LOST MANY PEOPLE

THINKS 10 TO 12 OF MAFALDA'S CREW KILLED BY BOILER EXPLOSION

Bahia, Brazil, Oct. 27.—(UP)—The French steamer Mosella, first of the ships whose heroic efforts turned the sinking of the Italian liner Principessa Mafalda into a triumph of man over the sea, arrived here today with 24 members of the Mafalda's crew and a graphic story of their rescue.

"I cannot believe that less than 600 people perished," the commander of the Mosella told the United Press just after the Mosella dropped anchor, "though I do not know how many people other ships rescued."

"I believe from 10 to 12 members of the Mafalda's engine room crew were killed by the explosion of her boilers."

Radio reports of other ships at the scene apparently make it impossible that so many people could have perished.

The Dutch steamer Alhena reported carrying 530 to Rio de Janeiro, where she was due at midnight tonight. The Formosa, reported to have 353 rescued aboard, was due at Rio Friday. Other ships have reported carrying smaller numbers.

The Mafalda's company numbered 1,256.

Commander Simone stayed at his post, the commander of the Mosella said, "and must have perished with his ship. The radio operator remained with him, after everyone else had left, and I believe he died at his post also."

As the Mosella dropped anchor in the bay, local authorities, the chief of police, the Italian consul and the United Press correspondent boarded the ship.

Twenty-four members of the Mafalda's crew crowded round. Their aspect was one of utter desolation.

The Mosella's commander, his eyes filled with tears, started to tell the first story of the Mafalda's sinking.

"I am an old sea dog," said Commander Privat. "But the picture never will leave my mind of the scene I saw after the Principessa Mafalda's sinking."

"We picked up the Mafalda's S. O. S. at 10 o'clock Tuesday night."

"The sea was a revolting sight. Contrary winds were blowing. The seas were running high."

"Our ship arrived at the scene off the rocky coast."

"The sea was full of people—in lifeboats and floating in life preservers."

ing to wireless messages from commanders of the five rescue ships.

Continued: conflicting reports indicate that the exact number of persons drowned will not be known until all vessels have arrived in port. Officials of the Navigazione Generale Italiana, owners of the Mafalda, said only 68 persons were missing. The Italian embassy also issued officially this number for those missing.

Figures radioed to the United Press by the commander of the steamer Avelona, who is in touch with rescue ships, indicated that only 52 persons remained unaccounted for.

He mentioned 'approximately 500' aboard the steamer Alhena. A radio-gram from the Alhena herself gave the exact figure of rescued aboard her as 530.

A wireless to the United Press from the commander of the Avelona, received this morning, said survivors were shoreward bound as follows: on the Alhena, approximately 500; Formosa, 295; Rosetti, 27; Mosella, 350. These total 1172.

A later message to the Mafalda's owners from the Mafalda purser, aboard the Alhena, said there were 530 rescued persons aboard. This increases the former total to 1202. In addition, the Greek ship Pera has reported to Bahia that it picked up two survivors, bringing the total to 1204.

The official report from offices of the Navigazione Generale Italiana in Genoa states there were 1256 passengers and crew aboard the Mafalda when it sailed. This indicates that not more than 52 are missing, unless the reports are in error.

Y. M. C. A. FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

THE Y. M. C. A. financial campaign is progressing favorably and it is believed that within a short time the goal will be attained. Business men of the city have been generous in their support and large corporations have also shown a most friendly interest.

In this campaign there has been thorough and quiet solicitation and the feeling is everywhere expressed that Brainerd's interest in the Y. M. C. A. is appreciated by the Northern Pacific railway company. Many more new subscribers have been added to the lists.

The committee soliciting funds is gratified at the reception accorded them in their work. This renewed interest in the association means bigger and better things.

The membership is growing, over 200 boys being active in the Y programs. Double that number is expected this winter. As cleanliness is next to godliness, it may be mentioned that the shower bath feature at the Y with its hot water facilities is being utilized to the fullest extent. Those not members can have this privilege by paying a small fee.

Saturday evenings are to have special programs and features, making them nights devoted especially to the shopmen of the city.

Four boy societies are now being sponsored by the Y and more are to be added. Many branches of athletics are to be represented. Business men of the city will also have the opportunity to take advantage of Y classes. A number of boy graduates of the high school will assist in a physical program to benefit their younger brothers.

New covering has been received for the game tables, so they will be in first class condition. Every effort is being made to make the building a community center for boys of the city, as well as their older brothers, the men of the shops, business men and others.

On all sides one sees renewed confidence and hope in the association. The committee of business men headed by F. H. Gruenhagen will not cease its labors upon completion of the financial campaign, but will continue to act as a financial steering committee throughout the year.

"NAVY DAY" ON ROOSEVELT'S BIRTHDAY

"NAVY DAY," October 27, is the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt. To his heart, no institution was as close as was the Navy. On the Navy he spent much time, thought and energy, and the Navy still feels his influence. More glorious pages to vivid chapters of naval history were added because of Theodore Roosevelt. It is fitting that his birthday be designated as "Navy Day."

For a hundred and fifty years the Navy has not only been the first line of defense, but has stood by to render necessary services to those in need, both in peace and in war.

Navy Day has some significance in Brainerd where some thirty or more families have boys in the navy. One has reached the status of commander of a ship.

The problem of a merchant marine is one requiring the keenest ability to handle. True, a merchant marine is indispensable when war comes and it has uses in peace time. The American Shipping Board is doing its best to operate vessels. It is confronted, however, with American shipping laws which make it more expensive to operate American ships than our foreign competitors in the same field.

Just as soon as you talk of extensive subsidizing of a merchant marine, you encounter the opposition of the farmers who figure if any subsidizing is to be done, congress might try it out on agriculture.

WALTER JOHNSON TO MANACE NEWARK BASEBALL TEAM

OPPORTUNITIES IN MAJOR LEAGUES ARE DISREGARDED

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE IS NO
GREAT SHAKES, AS BASE-
BALL GOES

WITH HIS FAMILY TO SUPPORT,
JOHNSON LET PRIDE TAKE
SECOND PLACE

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
New York, Oct. 27.—Walter Johnson announced in Washington that he would manage the Newark International League club for the next two seasons—and that is Newark's good luck.

If ever there was a ball player for whom other ball players should play their heads off, it is Walter Johnson. There were opportunities for Johnson to bid himself into a management job in the major leagues, but apparently he has chosen to go to the minors.

The International League is no great shakes, as baseball goes, but with a family to support, Walter naturally lets his pride take second place.

Paul Block, who recently bought the Newark International League club, is a newspaper publisher. If Block of Newark has been able to beat the best offers of the major league clubs for Johnson's services, it is a sign that the "Big Train" has nothing to worry about for the next two years.

There were a couple of major league clubs which would have been delighted to sign Walter as manager.

Once he quit the Senators, there was no doubt as to his ambition. At his Maryland home, the famous pitcher told me a fortnight ago that he wanted to manage a ball club.

Naturally, Johnson would have preferred to remain in the major leagues. He admitted as much to me.

But the major league clubs which needed managers were notoriously short of cash. The Boston Braves, for instance, who could have made excellent use of Johnson's name, not to mention his baseball knowledge, offered the "Big Train" $30,000 a year, and he refused.

This indicates that Paul Block paid more, which apparently is Block's good fortune. Walter Johnson is the one man capable of putting not only the Newark ball club but the International League into the headlines.

Walter has not yet signed with Newark, because all the major league clubs have not signed waivers on him. When they do, and it is taken for granted that they will in view of the Washington pitcher's many contributions to the game, Johnson will sign up as a player-manager of the Newark Bears.

Minneapolis.—There is some doubt whether Barnhart, Minnesota's kicker, will be able to do the team's punting Saturday. He will be able to play but it is thought his injured leg will not permit kicking. Otherwise the squad will be in good shape for Wisconsin, trainers announced.

Madison, Wis.—Neil Hayes, a sophomore, gives promise of developing into one of the best place-kickers in the conference. In practice he booted 19 successive kicks between the bars. The squad leaves for Minneapolis tonight to engage Minnesota Saturday.

Columbus, O.—Improvement in blocking and tackling is evident on the Ohio State football squad. Byron Eby, halfback, out with a foot injury, has discarded his crutches but it is not believed he will be able to play Saturday.

Chicago.—Thirty-five Chicago football players will leave here tonight for Columbus, where they play Ohio State, Saturday. From practice indications, Coach Stagg will combine an off-tackle attack with a forward passing offensive in the game.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Development of a defense which will stop the Illinois short pass attack is occupying the attention of Michigan coaches. The team was given a blow in the announcement that Joe Gembs, fullback, is definitely out of Saturday's game. Rich probably will take his place.

Champaign, Ill.—For three straight afternoons Coach Zuppke has used the same regular lineup, indicating he is satisfied. Stuessy is playing quarterback.

Bloomington, Ind.—Thirty-three Indiana players were scheduled to leave here today for Harvard. They will arrive Friday, when a banquet will be given them by Indiana and Big Ten alumni.

Iowa City, Ia.—Fearing Denver's tricky attack, Coach Burt Ingwersen is spending much of his time drilling the Iowa team in a pass defensive. Chatterton has replaced Brown in the line and Porter and Lauer, sophomores, have been given places in the backfield.

Evanston, Ill.—Northwesterns Wildcats, jarred by the 7-6 defeat handed them by Illinois Saturday, are hard at work in preparation for Missouri next Saturday. Coach Dick Hanley is handicapped by a non-scouting agreement and has outlined only a general defensive to be used in the game.

By CLYDE G. BYERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27.—Tom Heene, New Zealand heavyweight, today confidently faced his meeting with Jack Sharkey next month, another step in his course toward a battle for the heavyweight championship.

Last night Heene outpointed Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, here. The bout with Risko was his first step in Tex Rickard's elimination tournament to find a suitable opponent for Gene Tunney.

To win from Risko, Heene depended almost entirely on his left hand, and clever defensive maneuvers. Heene showed good footwork when he time and again stepped inside of Risko's swinging blows.

The fight was a disappointment to the 17,000 who witnessed it, for neither battler uncorked anything that smacked of championship possibilities.

Heene won seven rounds, with the second, third, and ninth given to Risko.

Risko's best showing came in the second, when he landed two punches to the jaw which shook Heene. The New Zealander kept out of danger for the rest of the round.
Heene failed to show any crushing power.

TROLLER

By ROBERT H. BEST

Vienna, Oct. 27.—Prince Carol's bid to return to his country and become either king or the king's controller had developed today into a long-range telegraphic bombardment.

In a lengthy statement, Carol declared he did not renounce his right of succession to the Roumanian throne, now occupied by his 6-year-old son, King Michel.

He declared that former Roumanian Undersecretary of State Manolescu, arrested at the Roumanian frontier, had carried messages to the people of his country making that point clear.

The Roumanian government, in an effort to minimize the importance of Manolescu's arrest, had declared previously that Manolescu carried only letters written by himself.

The members of the Brainerd football team returned home yesterday morning from Little Falls where they played a game with that city on Saturday afternoon, going down to defeat in a very uninteresting game. The boys say the ground was in terrible condition and they were obliged to play in about three inches of mud. The Little Falls team has taken a wonderful brace, however, since they played the first game of the season with the locals. The players have been switched around and placed differently, and being somewhat heavier than the local high school football team they put up a better game Saturday.

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 27.—(U.P.)—Miss Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, trans-Atlantic aviators, left in a Junkers airplane for Madrid at 10:50 A. M. today.

The flyers took off from Alverca, on the river Tagus, 16 miles north-east of the city.

The flyers were to be guests of American Ambassador Ogden H. Hammond at Madrid.

Madrid, Oct. 27.—Miss Ruth Elder and George Haldeman arrived at Getafe flying field here at 2:20 P. M. today in the Junkers airplane from which they had taken off this morning from Alverca, Portugal.

WALTER JOHNSON TO MANACE NEWARK BASEBALL TEAM

OPPORTUNITIES IN MAJOR LEAGUES ARE DISREGARDED

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE IS NO
GREAT SHAKES, AS BASE-
BALL GOES

WITH HIS FAMILY TO SUPPORT,
JOHNSON LET PRIDE TAKE
SECOND PLACE

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
New York, Oct. 27.—Walter Johnson announced in Washington that he would manage the Newark International League club for the next two seasons—and that is Newark's good luck.

If ever there was a ball player for whom other ball players should play their heads off, it is Walter Johnson. There were opportunities for Johnson to bid himself into a management job in the major leagues, but apparently he has chosen to go to the minors.

The International League is no great shakes, as baseball goes, but with a family to support, Walter naturally lets his pride take second place.

Paul Block, who recently bought the Newark International League club, is a newspaper publisher. If Block of Newark has been able to beat the best offers of the major league clubs for Johnson's services, it is a sign that the "Big Train" has nothing to worry about for the next two years.

There were a couple of major league clubs which would have been delighted to sign Walter as manager. Once he quit the Senators, there was no doubt as to his ambition. At his Maryland home, the famous pitcher told me a fortnight ago that he wanted to manage a ball club.

Naturally, Johnson would have preferred to remain in the major leagues. He admitted as much to me.

But the major league clubs which needed managers were notoriously short of cash. The Boston Braves, for instance, who could have made excellent use of Johnson's name, not to mention his baseball knowledge, offered the "Big Train" $30,000 a year, and he refused.

This indicates that Paul Block paid more, which apparently is Block's good fortune. Walter Johnson is the one man capable of putting not only the Newark ball club but the International League into the headlines.

Walter has not yet signed with Newark, because all the major league clubs have not signed waivers on him. When they do, and it is taken for granted that they will in view of the Washington pitcher's many contributions to the game, Johnson will sign up as a player-manager of the Newark Bears.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 27.—President Coolidge, it was believed here today will let Secretary of the Navy Wilbur deal without interference with the dramatic appeal of Rear Admiral Magruder for revocation of the order detaching the officer from command at the Philadelphia navy yard.

The president has indicated time after time that he has confidence in his cabinet chiefs, and while the appeal is scheduled to reach him "through channels," that is through the office of the secretary of the navy, he is expected to approve as a matter of pure "routine" whatever recommendation Wilbur takes.

The issue itself, observers say, is thus left, as before, between Magruder and Wilbur. The appeal, though it startled by its unexpectedness, did not influence Wilbur's attitude toward the fiery admiral, for the latter was fully within his rights in making it.

Quality Leadership the Backbone of its Supremacy

Hudson design attains its great margins of supremacy in performance and reliability, only because it is accompanied by an equally pre-eminent leadership of quality in materials and workmanship. The great suppliers will tell you that its material standards are more exacting than many of the costliest cars. Its precision manufacture is carried to limits as fine as automobile practice has ever achieved. And its standards are guarded by inspection as careful, and watchful, as these rigid principles of quality themselves.

High Compression Performance that thrills the most Veteran Experts

By the Automobile Expert of "Automobile Topics"

"It has... all the 'punch' in the world... a smart push in the back every time the accelerator pedal is trod upon. Throughout its whole range, the response to throttle seems to be precisely the same. 'Soft spots' are simply not to be found.

"... it will walk away from the traffic signal faster than anything Hudson has ever built... It will step out of line and jump into the lead from any speed without the slightest hesitation.

"But further, all this is accomplished without a vestige of that tinkle-tinkle business under the hood that Englishmen know as 'pinking' and American engineers as the gas knock, or detonation. Apparently this present Hudson engine just isn't going to 'ping' when the throttle is quickly opened, or when the car is driven hard against a hill.

"Under precisely similar conditions most any other modern engine will detonate when running on ordinary fuel...

"The Hudson motor does what it does on any old fuel at all, it is said, and assuredly does it on the run of pump fuel that is sold at base prices every where."

When A King Had To Borrow A Pair Of Hose

As the American workman looks over our fresh stocks of overalls, shirts, sturdy shoes and other items to complete his "wardrobe" during National Work Clothes Week, he little realizes what a romantic part in history many of these garments played. Delving into the pages of the past we discover that in 1760 suspenders were declared an offense against public decency and the morals of the community.

Hose are a common article of attire today but in 1603 James the First was obliged to borrow a pair from the Earl of Mar to wear at his coronation. Equally unbelievable is the fact that in 1594 the King of France owned only five handkerchiefs, and most of these, history records, were full of holes.

Today, thanks to our modern system of merchandise distribution, the American workman can actually purchase clothes for his everyday tasks that were beyond the reach of kings and nobles centuries ago.

When A King Had To Borrow A Pair Of Hose
As the American workman looks over our fresh stocks of overalls, shirts, sturdy shoes and other items to complete his "wardrobe" during National Work Clothes Week, he little realizes what a romantic part in history many of these garments played. Delving into the pages of the past we discover that in 1760 suspenders were declared an offense against public decency and the morals of the community.

Hose are a common article of attire today but in 1603 James the First was obliged to borrow a pair from the Earl of Mar to wear at his coronation. Equally unbelievable is the fact that in 1594 the King of France owned only five handkerchiefs, and most of these, history records, were full of holes.

Today, thanks to our modern system of merchandise distribution, the American workman can actually purchase clothes for his everyday tasks that were beyond the reach of kings and nobles centuries ago.

Quality Leadership the Backbone of its Supremacy

Hudson design attains its great margins of supremacy in performance and reliability, only because it is accompanied by an equally pre-eminent leadership of quality in materials and workmanship. The great suppliers will tell you that its material standards are more exacting than many of the costliest cars. Its precision manufacture is carried to limits as fine as automobile practice has ever achieved. And its standards are guarded by inspection as careful, and watchful, as these rigid principles of quality themselves.

High Compression Performance that thrills the most Veteran Experts

By the Automobile Expert of "Automobile Topics"

"It has... all the 'punch' in the world... a smart push in the back every time the accelerator pedal is trod upon. Throughout its whole range, the response to throttle seems to be precisely the same. 'Soft spots' are simply not to be found.

"... it will walk away from the traffic signal faster than anything Hudson has ever built... It will step out of line and jump into the lead from any speed without the slightest hesitation.

"But further, all this is accomplished without a vestige of that tinkle-tinkle business under the hood that Englishmen know as 'pinking' and American engineers as the gas knock, or detonation. Apparently this present Hudson engine just isn't going to 'ping' when the throttle is quickly opened, or when the car is driven hard against a hill.

"Under precisely similar conditions most any other modern engine will detonate when running on ordinary fuel...

"The Hudson motor does what it does on any old fuel at all, it is said, and assuredly does it on the run of pump fuel that is sold at base prices everywhere."

of Northeast; Came Here in 1876

Mrs. Emma E. Forsythe, Brainerd's grand lady, noted for her life of charity and goodness and high ideals, for her work for the betterment of Brainerd, and her interest in the advancement of Northeast Brainerd, passed away this morning at her residence 321 Third avenue N. E. at the age of 76 years after a prolonged illness.

Possibly no other individual has accomplished as much as did Mrs. Forsythe in putting Northeast Brainerd on the map. Her heart remained there and she always worked for its advancement and improvement.

In 1878 she platted Farrar and Forsythe addition to the city of Brainerd which constituted the major part of Northeast Brainerd.

As an example of her interest in Northeast Brainerd she planted maple tree seedlings on Ash avenue 46 years ago brought to Brainerd by the late Judge Holland from Vermont.

Before automobiles came into existence she maintained a high class private livery of thoroughbred horses for her use and that of her family.

She was idolized by the many she has befriended and her entire life has been devoted to the thought and comfort of others. Her charitable deeds are known throughout the entire Northwest.

One of the first members of the Episcopal church of Brainerd she has been active in church affairs since the days when the original Mission church was in existence in the city.

Her life as a club woman has been outstanding. Besides being a member of the Women's Relief Corps and other fraternal organizations she was one of the organizers of the Chapter of the Eastern Star in Brainerd and was Worthy Matron.

Mrs. Forsythe was a representative of the Sixth Congressional District at the World's Fair in 1893 at Chicago and was named on the board of lady managers.

Her husband, George Forsythe was the first foreman in the machine shops of the Northern Pacific railway in Brainerd. He passed away here on February 19, 1912.

Joseph Midgley, Brainerd, was taken by her into the Forsythe household at the age of six years and reared.

Mrs. Forsythe was born December 16, 1851 in Utica, New York and was married to George Forsythe on November 18, 1867 at Rome, New York. They came to Brainerd in September 1876, and resided here until their deaths.

Surviving is one son, George L. Forsythe and a brother-in-law, A. J. Forsythe, both of Brainerd.

The funeral will be conducted from the residence, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock under the auspices of the Eastern Star, Rev. R. J. Long officiating. Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery.

N. E. IMPROVEMENT LEAGUE MEETING

First Meeting of Season Held Tuesday Evening at Lowell School

WATER MAIN EXTENSION

Alderman V. F. Anderson Reported on Property Lines of H Street

Alderman V. F. Anderson gave a very interesting report at the Northeast Brainerd Improvement League meeting held Tuesday, on the progress being made in regard to establishing the property lines and a uniform width of H street Northeast, commonly known as Ash Avenue. With the development and increasing popularity of Lum Park as Brainerd's recreation center it is believed that a well established and well kept highway will add greatly to the patronage and financial revenue to be derived from this city property. The league heartily endorsed the action taken to remedy the present condition of this street.

The action of the Water and Light Board in pushing the work of extending water mains through the Mill district is very gratifying to the property owners of this section of the city, and the Board was commended upon the progress being made. A regrettable occurrence brought to the attention of the League was that tools and equipment to the amount of $40 had been stolen on the water works project.

The matter of speeding motorists on Third Avenue was brought for discussion and efforts will be made to curb with this situation as it is dangerous for the school children and teachers upon the dismissal of school.

While the attendance at the meeting was not large as desired, the enthusiasm of those present was very encouraging.

Complaints of Girls Believed Cleared up by Arrest of Youth Yesterday Afternoon

TELLS STORY TO POLICE

Will be Brought Before Judge Kinder in Probate Court to Face Charges

A 17 year old Brainerd boy masher who has been terrorizing school girls and teachers on the south side yesterday was arrested by city police and admitted four instances where he had assaulted girls.

The boy being under age his name cannot be divulged. He will be brought before Judge L. B. Kinder in probate court and confronted with the charges.

The boy's arrest followed a charge by a girl that he had made advances to her on the porch of her family's residence. She, unable to avoid him had called for help and the boy had been frightened away by the appearance of her mother.

Recognized by the girl a charge was placed against the youth and he was arrested yesterday afternoon. On examination he admitted his guilt to the police in a nonchalant manner and was somewhat bewildered when police informed him that he faced serious charges.

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Sheila Kildare and her father emigrate to America to follow Emmett Murtough, to whom she is betrothed. Neither Kildare nor Murtough hold steady jobs and Sheila works as a waitress. Her only friends are the family of Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer, whose kindness interests her. Murtough betrays to a rival bootlegging gang the hiding place of $150,000 contraband. A chorus girl plans to double cross him out of his reward which was to have been $5,000.

"You'd never get any place with Clocker except driving a car and there's no money in that. At least not enough to buy what your little sweetie wants to have. You'll have to make a lot of money, Big Boy, after we're married, but we two can work together. I got a real bright mind, you know."

"You sure have," agreed Murtough, infatuated with her flattery. "When we get it all set and straightened out," she went on, "we'll hop out to Detroit. I got some friends out there. I got some friends in Chicago, too. They'll all help put us in right and we'll be getting big money before long. All anyone needs is the capital to start and what will five grand in our kick will be all set. You sure pulled it off fine! And we'll have our last blowout at the West End Dance, won't we, Big Boy, right under the nose of Murtough Clocker and his whole gang?"

"Hah! We better cut out on the dance?" suggested Murtough. "It looks dangerous to me."

"Don't be a simp. Who knows you had anything to do with this, and besides, who's going to wise up Clocker that the raid is going on, until it's over. Them babies you was dealing with aren't going to let none of the Clocker crowd down there get to a telephone, you know."

"Let me have a couple more, Big Boy."

"But I don't care much about hanging around."

"We'll go, Big Boy, and I'm going to look my best, so let your sweetie have enough for a new party dress. I want to buy it this afternoon after I get my beauty sleep."

Murtough counted out some bills and gave them to her. Clarice spied three remaining twenty dollar bills.

"Let me have a couple more, Big Boy. I need shoes and stockings, too. A twenty will get us out from under this check all right."

Murtough frowned, but he passed the money to her and shoved the remaining bill into his vest pocket. Clarice was certainly an expensive person, he thought.

CHAPTER XII

The West End Club Dance

Sheila sang with joy as she bustled about the flat making ready for the dance at the West End Club. Not only did she have her own pretty suit to primp and make more beautiful, if that could be possible, but there was Old Tom to help. His fine, old broadcloth long coat, turned a bit green with age since the days when it was cut for him by the traveling tailor from Dublin who visited Killmanmull every two or three years, had to be brushed and made ready and the buttons put in his Sunday boiled front shirt and all, but Sheila did not mind this night.

A new dress and stockings and shoes had been purchased and even Emmett, in spite of all his entangling adventures, had not forgotten a corsage of flowers. Every once in a while Sheila stopped in the midst of her preparations to run to the stand and smell the precious bouquet. It would be her first big party, the first ball that she ever had attended in all her twenty years. And how she loved Emmett for escorting her to this proud affair, where she would meet the people who were his fine business friends!

It was after ten when Emmett, dressed in a Tuxedo that fitted so snugly that the biceps in his huge arms stood out, arrived. He had spent an hour with the barber; his face had been shaved to satin softness and his hair sleeked to the head until hardly a ripple of the wave in it showed. Certainly Emmett was a fine figure of a man and a very proper representative in this new country of Killmanmull, thought Sheila. She kissed him gratefully upon the cheek for his flowers and if Emmett blushed it was absorbed in the flush of his own face due to the hot towels of the barber.

"Ah, Emmett," she cried, "I am so happy tonight! To think that you and me and father are all going together to this grand affair. 'Tis lovely of ye to take us, so it is, Emmett Murtough, an' I love ye fer it."

Emmett made no reply. He was in a silent mood. Too many confusing thoughts ran through his mind to permit much of the boasting and blarney that usually marked his treatment of Sheila, even when in a gentle humor.

"Well, 'tis a happy father I am the night," Old Tom added to Sheila's thanks. "What with ye taking yer rightful place among the bigwigs an' dressed as good an' grand as the next one, I'm thinking, an' you an' Sheila having patched it up, 'tis indeed an' indeed happy I am."

"Sheila will be the queen of the ball, I'm thinking," said Murtough in an effort to join in the spirit of the occasion. "My, but 'tis a pretty girl ye are!"

"None of yer blarney now," cried Sheila but more than pleased at the compliments of her lover. "An' there'll be many a prettier girl there that'll be wishing to know who I'm with," she added.

"I couldn't see any of them, blinded as I am with you, Sheila, darling."

The assembly room at the club from which all furniture had been removed for the dancing was festooned gaily. Flags of America and the Irish Free State were intertwined and hung at every conceivable place and bunting draped all the four walls. An orchestra was hidden behind palms and ferns and a spotlight played from one corner, while catercornered from it was a projector of different colors to be used when the dances were on. The clubrooms downstairs were thronged when Murtough and Kildares arrived. A committee of club officials greeted every comer and Murtough met men whom he never had so much as seen before. Sheila was presented to everyone and men from all over the hall flocked to be introduced to her.

Her modesty and fresh prettiness, straight from the "ould sod" as one patriarch said, appealed particularly to the elderly men and women. In her they saw the old fashioned girl, with long hair, and with becoming blushes at their compliments, and they loved her for it. These oldsters did not approve so much of their children and grandchildren who had clipped their fine tresses and who depended upon rouge and lip stick for their healthy appearance instead of fresh air and sunshine which has made the cheeks of Irish colleens famed the world over for their beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Shea were among the first to recognize and greet her and it was through them that Sheila was presented to a score of the heads of the fine old Irish families whose sons were now famous for their accomplishments. Rory was not with his father and mother when Sheila arrived. He had joined some of the younger men of the club and was idling away the time watching the dancers. It was on the ballroom floor that he caught his first glimpse of her. Emmett and Sheila were dancing and as she recognized Rory she waved to him and smiled at him around the heavy set Murtough.

At the end of the dance Murtough escorted her to the chairs occupied by the O'Sheas and Old Tom Kildare.

"I must leave ye' now for a little while," he told her. "'Tis some business for the club, for the good of the party," he explained.

"Don't be gone long, Emmett, an' she hesitated and drew him down to her, "ye won't be drinking the 'ould sod'?"

"Of course not," he answered, but there was the old surly tone in his voice. The smile faded from Sheila's face as he disappeared in the crowd. Soon she was laughing and talking, however, and when Rory came to her for the next dance she was a sparkle with gaiety. At the end of the dance Rory asked if she would go downstairs for lemonade and she accepted.

They made their way through the crowd to the stairs and pushed their way through a greater crowd below until they stood near the refreshment stand. Rory obtained cool drinks and as Sheila lifted the glass to her lips she spied Emmett and with him was a girl whom she never before had seen.

NATIONAL GUARD OF COLORADO MAY BE CALLED

URGED TO BE READY ON AN INSTANT'S NOTICE FOR SERVICE IN STRIKE AREA

GOV. WILLIAM H. ADAMS REFUSES TO COMMENT ON HIS ACTION

Denver, Colo., Oct. 27.—(UP)—Governor William H. Adams has ordered the Colorado National Guard to prepare to move into the I. W. W. strike areas in this state on an instant's notice, it was learned today. The governor refused to comment on the action. State officials, however, said that Adams has conferred with the adjutant general and other officers of the guard, and ordered them to prepare for immediate action if violence arises.

Governor Adams still was hoping that trouble might be avoided, but state officials felt that the strike situation was approaching a crisis. Special trainloads of guardsmen could be placed on duty in all strike districts in a few hours if necessary, it was said.

Almost 100 automobile loads of picketers who invaded Freemont county from the northern fields were camped at Coal Creek, ready to attempt to force all mines in the Florence region to close.

Pickets from the southern field gathered at Trinidad in mass meetings. An attempt to storm the Delagua mine of the Victor-American Fuel Company was feared there, officials said.

In a formal statement, Governor Adams rebuked the I. W. W. at the state house last night. He called upon county officials in the strike zones to enforce the law against picketing.

He offered every aid at the disposal of the state to protect life and property.

Leaders of the United Mine Workers announced that miners in Freemont county would go to work today despite the delegation of picketers from northern Colorado.

It was announced at a mass meeting at Coal Creek that a telegram had been received from miners of southern Wyoming stating that they were ready to strike if coal is shipped to Colorado from Wyoming mines in an effort to break the strike. Denver and Colorado rapidly is facing a coal shortage.

"You'd never get any place with Clocker except driving a car and there's no money in that. At least not enough to buy what you little sweetie wants to have. You'll have to make a lot of money, Big Boy, after we're married, but we two can work together. I got a real bright mind, you know."

"You sure have," agreed Murtough, infatuated with her flattery. "When we get it all set and straightened out, I'll see you, we'll hop out to Detroit. I got some friends out there. I got some friends in Chicago, too. They'll all help put us in right and we'll be getting big money before long. All anyone needs is the capital to start and what with five grand in our kick we'll be all set. You sure pulled it off fine! And we'll have our last blowout at the West End Dance, won't we, Big Boy, right under the nose of Mammie Clocker and his whole gang?"

"Hadden't we better cut out the dance?" suggested Murtough. "It looks dangerous to me."

"Don't be a snip. Who knows you had anything to do with this, and besides, who's going to wise up Clocker that the raid is going on, until it's over. Them babies you was dealing with aren't going to let none of the Clocker crowd down there get to a telephone, you know."

"But I don't care much about hanging around."

"Well, go, Big Boy, and I'm going to look my best, so let your sweetie have enough for a new party dress. I want to buy it this afternoon after I get my beauty sleep."

Murtough counted out some bills and gave them to her. Clocker spied three remaining twenty dollar bills.

"Let me have a couple of more, Big Boy. I need shoes and stockings, too. A twenty will get us out from under this check all right."

Murtough frowned, but he passed the money to her and shoved the remaining bill into his vest pocket. Clocker was certainly an expensive person, he thought.

CHAPTER XII

The West End Club Dance

Sheila sang with joy as she bustled about the flat, making ready for the dance at the West End Club. Not only did she have her own pretty self to primp and make more beautiful, if that could be possible, but there was Old Tom to help. His fine, old broadcloth long coat, turned a bit green with age since the days when it was cut for him by the traveling tailor from Dublin who visited Killamul every two or three years, had to be brushed and made ready and the buttons put in his Sunday boiled front shirt and all, but Sheila did not mind this night.

A new dress and stockings and shoes had been purchased and even Emmett, in spite of all his entangling adventures, had not forgotten a corsage of flowers. Every once in a while Sheila stopped in the midst of her preparations to run to the stand and smell the precious bouquet. It would be her first big party, the first ball that she ever had attended in all her twenty years. And how she loved Emmett for escorting her to this proud affair, where she would meet the people who were his fine business friends!

It was after ten when Emmett, dressed in a Tuxedo that fitted so snugly that the biceps in his huge arms stood out, arrived. He had spent an hour with the barber; his face had been shaved to satin softness and his hair sleeked to his head until hardly a ripple of the wave in it showed. Certainly Emmett was a fine figure of a man and a very proper representative in this new country of Killamul, thought Sheila. She kissed him gratefully upon the cheek for his flowers and if Emmett blushed it was absorbed in the flush of his own face due to the hot towels of the barber.

"Ah, Emmett," she cried, "I am so happy tonight! To think that you and me and father are all going together to this grand affair. 'Tis lovely of ye to take us, so it is, Emmett Murtough, an' I love ye fer it."

Emmett made no reply. He was in a silent mood. Too many confusing thoughts ran through his mind to permit much of the boasting badinage that usually marked his treatment of Sheila, even when in a gentle humor.

"Well, 'tis a happy father I am the night," Old Tom added to Sheila's thanks. "What with ye taking yer rightful place among the big wigs an' dressed as good an' grand as the next one, I'm thinking, an' you an' Sheila having patched it up, 'tis indeed an' indeed happy I am."

"Sheila will be the queen of the ball, I'm thinking," said Murtough in an effort to join in the spirit of the occasion. "My, but 'tis a pretty girl ye are!"

"None of yer blarney now," cried Sheila but more than pleased at the compliments of her lover. "An' there'll be many a prettier girl there that'll be wishing to know who I'm with," she added.

"I couldn't see any of them, blinded as I am with you, Sheila, darling."

The assembly room at the club from which all furniture had been removed for the dancing was festooned gaily. Flags of America and the Irish Free State were intertwined and hung at every conceivable place and bunting draped all the four walls. An orchestra was hidden behind palms and ferns and a spotlight played from one corner, while catercornered from it was a projector of different colors to be used when the dances were on. The clubrooms downstairs were thronged when Murtough and Kildares arrived. A committee of club officials greeted every comer and Murtough met men whom he never had so much as seen before. Sheila was presented to everyone and men from all over the hall flocked to be introduced to her.

Her modesty and fresh prettiness, straight from the "ould sod" as the patriarch said, appealed particularly to the elderly men and women. In her they saw the old fashioned girl, with long hair, and with becoming blushes at their compliments, and they loved her for it. These oldsters did not approve so much of their children and grandchildren who had clipped their fine tresses and who depended upon rouge and lip stick for their healthy appearance instead of fresh air and sunshine which had made the cheeks of Irish colleens famed the world over for their beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Shea were among the first to recognize and greet her and it was through them that Sheila was presented to a score of the heads of the fine old Irish families whose sons were now famous for their accomplishments. Rory was not with his father and mother when Sheila arrived. He had joined some of the younger men of the club and was idling away the time watching the dancers. It was on the ballroom floor that he caught his first glimpse of her. Emmett and Sheila were dancing and as she recognized Rory she waved to him and smiled at him around the heavy set Murtough.

At the end of the dance Murtough escorted her to the chairs occupied by the O'Sheas and Old Tom Kildare.

"I must leave ye now for a little while," he told her. "'Tis some business for the club, for the good of the party," he explained.

"Don't be gone long, Emmett, an' she hesitated and drew him down to her, 'ye won't be drinking the night?"

"Of course not," he answered, but he was the old surly tone in his voice. The smile fled from Sheila's face as he disappeared in the crowd. Soon she was laughing and talking, however, and when Rory came to her for the next dance she was a sparkle with gaiety. At the end of the dance Rory asked if she would go downstairs for lemonade and she accepted.

They made their way through the crowd to the stairs and pushed their way through a greater crowd below until they stood near the refreshment stand. Rory obtained cool drinks and as Sheila lifted the glass to her lips she spied Emmett and with him was a girl whom she never before had seen.

NATIONAL GUARD OF COLORADO MAY BE CALLED

URGED TO BE READY ON AN INSTANT'S NOTICE FOR SERVICE IN STRIKE AREA

GOV. WILLIAM H. ADAMS REFUSES TO COMMENT ON HIS ACTION

Denver, Colo., Oct. 27.—(UP)—Governor William H. Adams has ordered the Colorado National Guard to prepare to move into the I. W. W. strike areas in this state on an instant's notice, it was learned today.

The governor refused to comment on the action. State officials, however, said that Adams has conferred with the adjutant general and other officers of the guard, and ordered them to prepare for immediate action if violence arises.

Governor Adams still was hoping that trouble might be avoided, but state officials felt that the strike situation was approaching a crisis. Special trainloads of guardsmen could be placed on duty in all strike districts in a few hours if necessary, it was said.

Almost 100 automobile loads of picketers who invaded Freemont county from the northern fields were camped at Coal Creek, ready to attempt to force all mines in the Florence region to close.

Pickets from the southern field gathered at Trinidad in mass meetings. An attempt to storm the Delagua mine of the Victor-American Fuel Company was feared there, officials said.

In a formal statement, Governor Adams rebuked the I. W. W. at the state house last night. He called upon county officials in the strike zones to enforce the law against picketing.

He offered every aid at the disposal of the state to protect life and property. Leaders of the United Mine Workers announced that miners in Freemont county would go to work today despite the delegation of picketers from northern Colorado.

It was announced at a mass meeting at Coal Creek that a telegram had been received from miners of southern Wyoming stating that they were ready to strike if coal is shipped to Colorado from Wyoming mines in an effort to break the strike. Denver and Colorado rapidly is facing a coal shortage.
